

Who Should Host a Bridal Shower?

The bridal shower is an opportunity for the bride's closest family and friends to enjoy a relaxing moment with the bride before the big day.

The bridal shower is normally held within two months of the wedding; the latest it should be held is two weeks before the big day. The bridal shower is traditionally hosted by the maid of honour (it's often considered one of the maid of honour responsibilities). However, it can also be hosted by sisters, aunts, cousins or close friends. According to etiquette it is poor taste for either of the mothers (especially the bride's mother) to host the bridal shower. Otherwise, anyone who wants to host it can!
